SECTION 1: HERO

You Know What to Say. Now Practise Saying It.

A 4-week online speaking-confidence programme presented by Polomo for anyone who knows the answer or has a great idea, but struggles to say it out loud.

The team meeting starts. You have a valuable perspective. Your heart speeds up, you look down at your notes, and someone else speaks first.

Again.

SpeakUp Lab is a supportive practice community where you speak in small groups, at a level that feels manageable, until speaking up starts to feel familiar.

- Practise speaking out loud, not just read about it. Four scheduled live hours every week, for four weeks.
- Start where you are. Begin at a level that suits you, or simply watch first.
- Practise in a pod of about 10 people, with a facilitator helping to keep the room encouraging.
- Work towards the moments you avoid: contributing in work meetings, joining group discussions, introducing yourself, handling unexpected questions, or facing job interviews.
- Keep going afterwards with three months of alumni access.

Offer Details: Founding cohort price: ₦20,000 (one-time) · Only 50 places · Enrolment closes 21 November 2026 · Core programme starts 31 January 2027

SECTION 2: THE PROBLEM

It was never that you had nothing to say

You know the feeling, even if only some of these are yours:

- You have a clear answer or insight in a meeting, but you hope someone else speaks up instead.
- You have an opinion in a project chat or group discussion, and you let it pass.
- You rehearse a sentence in your head until the moment to say it is gone.
- Someone asks you to introduce yourself, and your mind goes blank.

- You dread the interview or client question you did not see coming.

From the outside, it can look like you have nothing to add. On the inside, you have plenty. The gap is between having something to say and feeling comfortable enough to say it.

And that gap tends to feed itself. Each time you stay quiet, you get relief for a moment. But you also miss the chance to find out that speaking can go fine. The next time feels just as hard, or harder.

Over time, avoidance can cost you:

- Workplace or community participation you wanted to take part in
- Ideas your team never got to hear
- Conversations and networking opportunities you stepped back from
- Interview or presentation moments where you could have shown more of yourself

None of this says anything about your worth. Plenty of capable, thoughtful people find speaking up hard. It is common, and it is workable.

Here is the part most people miss: the answer is probably not more theory about speaking. Another video will not change how it feels when attention turns towards you.

What helps is a safe place to practise, in manageable steps, again and again.

SECTION 3: THE NEW OPPORTUNITY

A place to practise, not another course to watch

Polomo's SpeakUp Lab is a supportive practice community for people who find speaking up difficult.

We are not teaching you speech structure, slide design or presentation tricks. There are plenty of free videos on that already, and if you have watched some, you may have noticed they did not change how you feel in the moment.

SpeakUp Lab does something different. It gives you regular, real opportunities to actually speak, in small groups, with encouragement, starting small and building gradually.

You cannot build familiarity with speaking through avoidance alone. You need to experience it, practise, and repeat.

The Core Promise: Practise speaking. Build confidence. Find your voice.

That is the whole idea, and the rest of this page shows you how it works.

SECTION 4: THE UNIQUE MECHANISM

The SpeakUp Exposure Loop™

A simple five-step cycle that turns "I wish I had said something" into regular, manageable practice:

- 1. PROMPT: You receive a reason to speak: a question, a topic or a short challenge. You are not left wondering what to say or when.
- 2. SPEAK: You take the opportunity and say something out loud. It can be short. What matters is that you did it.
- 3. EXPOSE: You meet different speaking situations and group sizes, so no single situation stays the only one you know.
- 4. REPEAT: You do it again. And again. Familiarity comes from repetition, and the loop is built to bring you back to the practice.
- 5. REFLECT: You notice what went better than you feared, and choose your next manageable challenge.

Then the loop starts again, at a slightly higher level, when you are ready.

Why it works the way it does: If you avoid speaking, your brain never gets evidence that it can be survived. The Exposure Loop gives you that experience in small, supported doses.

Why it never feels like being thrown in: The loop is gradual, supportive and respects your comfort level. You can observe first, begin small and pass on an activity when you need to. Nobody is forced to speak before they are ready.

SECTION 5: HOW THE PROGRAMME WORKS

What actually happens after you join

Four weeks. Online, on Telegram video chat. Five pods of about 10 people each. Sixteen scheduled hours of live practice.

Your week	What happens

Two weekday sessions (30 minutes each)	You practise in your own pod of about 10. Short, focused and regular, so practice becomes a habit rather than an event.
One weekend session (3 hours)	The wider SpeakUp Lab community comes together for warm-ups, small-group challenges, spontaneous speaking, larger-group opportunities and reflection.
Every week	4 scheduled live hours. Across the four weeks, 16 hours of scheduled live practice.

In your pod sessions you might:

- Respond to a speaking prompt
- Take a short, timed speaking challenge
- Join quick speaking rounds
- Answer a spontaneous question
- Try impromptu speaking
- Come back to the same kind of challenge more than once, so it gets more familiar

In the weekend session you might:

- Warm up together with the whole community
- Take on small-group speaking challenges
- Try spontaneous speaking
- Step into larger-group speaking opportunities when you feel ready
- Reflect on your progress and encourage each other

Every member has structured chances to practise within their pod. Larger-group opportunities are part of the weekend sessions, and you move towards them at your own pace.

Who runs it: One lead facilitator and programme director, plus five pod facilitators, one for each pod. They organise the speaking opportunities and help keep the room supportive. They are facilitators, not therapists, and SpeakUp Lab is not a clinical programme.

You are never pushed in. You can start at a manageable level, watch before you take part, move at a pace that suits you, and pass on an activity when you need to.

SECTION 6: WHAT YOU RECEIVE

Everything in your founding membership

Each item below exists for one reason: to make it easier to start, easier to keep going, and safer to speak.

Start at the right level

- Starting-Rung Session: Find a starting point that suits you, so you do not begin too hard or too easy.
- 10-Tier Level Map: See the whole path, from gentle first steps to more challenging situations, and always know your next manageable step.
- Level-Matched Pod Placement: Join a smaller group with appropriate starting challenges, so participation feels more manageable.
- Discreet Onboarding Concierge: Get support during onboarding, so you start with questions answered and no fuss.
- Start-Now Welcome Kit: Preparation materials that help you walk in ready.

Feel safe enough to speak

- No-Pressure First Seat: Observe before you take part. Watching is a legitimate way to begin.
- Win-First Room Rules: Room expectations built around respect and encouragement, so the focus is on what goes well.
- Kindness Red-Card: A clear way to address disrespectful or discouraging behaviour, so the room stays safe for everyone.
- Join-From-Anywhere Room: Take part remotely, from wherever you can connect.
- Low-Data Audio-Only Lane: An alternative if your data is limited or you would rather not be on video.

Get a first win, fast

- Week-1 First-Win Fast-Track: An early chance to complete a first 60-second talk in a small group. Short enough to be manageable, real enough to count.

Practise every session, and keep going

- Every-Session Task Card: You will always know exactly what to practise.
- Streak and Auto-Nudge System: Reminders to help you keep momentum on days when avoiding is easier.
- 24-Hour Catch-Up Pack: Missed a session? Resources to help you catch up, rather than fall behind.
- Practice-Partner Matcher: Find another member to practise with between sessions.

See your progress

- Visible Progress Log: A record of your participation, so you can see what you have done, not just how you felt.
- Baseline-vs-Now Report: Compare where you started with where you are at the end of the programme.

Keep practising afterwards

- Alumni Practice Room: Continued practice opportunities after the core programme ends.

SECTION 7: THE BONUSES

Five bonus packages, included with your enrolment

The most common reasons people hold back are real: "I will not know how to start." "What if my mind goes blank?" "I am too busy." "I do not feel calm enough." Each bonus takes one of those off the table. All five are included in the founding offer at no extra cost.

Bonus 1: Confidence Breakthrough Starter Pack

- 3-Rep Proof Test
- Easy-Start Five
- Goal-Not-Fear Intro Script

Begin with manageable speaking opportunities and notice early progress, so your first steps do not feel like a leap.

Bonus 2: Never-Blank Speaking Toolkit

- Blank-Proof Pocket Card
- Mistake Library
- 5-Point Self-Scorecard

Practical resources for the uncomfortable moments, so a stumble feels less like the end of the world.

Bonus 3: Pre-Speech Calm and Camera Confidence Kit

- Minute-Before Grounding Audio
- High-Stakes Pre-Event Routine
- Camera Comfort Ladder

A more manageable way to prepare for challenging moments and to build comfort on camera.

Bonus 4: Busy Professional Practice Pack

- Busy-Schedule Lite Plan
- Zero-Travel Start Guide
- 5-Minute Drill Pack

Make it easier to keep practising through a demanding work or life schedule, with short drills for small gaps in your day.

Bonus 5: Real-World Speaking and 90-Day Confidence Pack

- Real-World Simulator
- 8-Ask Rejection Ladder
- 90-Day Speaking Targets
- 10-Drill Refresher Month
- Plug-and-Play Practice Group Kit

Help your practice carry over into everyday work and personal situations, and keep developing after the four weeks end.

SECTION 8: THE PRE-PROGRAMME WARM-UP

You do not have to wait until 31 January to get started

When you enrol, you join the community straight away. From 22 November 2026 to 30 January 2027, you take part in a gentle, low-pressure warm-up before the core programme begins.

The warm-up is a preparation experience, not a second programme. Its purpose is simple: by the time the four-week programme starts, Telegram feels easy, the faces feel familiar, and you know how everything works.

During the warm-up you can:

- Get comfortable using Telegram
- Meet other members
- Understand how the programme and the room rules work
- Take part in voluntary, low-pressure speaking opportunities, or simply listen
- Begin working out which speaking situations feel most uncomfortable
- Prepare for pod activities and the core programme

Week	Theme
1	Welcome to SpeakUp Lab
2	Getting Comfortable
3	Finding Your Starting Point

4	Small Speaking Opportunities
5	Consistency Without Pressure
6	A Fresh Start
7	Spontaneous Speaking
8	Building Familiarity
9	Preparing for the Programme
10	Ready to Speak

Every activity is optional. You can observe, listen or join in gradually.

SECTION 9: THREE MONTHS OF ALUMNI ACCESS

The four weeks end. The habit does not have to.

Speaking gets easier with practice, and it can fade when practice stops. That is why your membership does not end when the core programme does.

After the four weeks, you receive three months of alumni access, including:

- Continued access to the alumni community, so you keep your people and your practice habit
- One 45-minute coach-hosted practice room every month, a regular, reliable opportunity to keep speaking

That means ongoing chances to practise, keep your momentum and carry what you have built into your team meetings, job interviews, presentations, and everyday conversations.

> [BUTTON: Join the Founding Cohort]
> Maintain your momentum with alumni access.

SECTION 10: THE GUARANTEE

The Speaking Confidence Progress Guarantee

If you take part and still have not made enough progress, we will give you up to two additional weeks of guided support at no extra cost.

We cannot honestly promise that your nerves will disappear, and we will not. Confidence builds at different speeds for different people.

What we can promise is that if you show up and need more time, Polomo will not leave you to figure it out alone. Eligible members who need it can receive up to two more weeks of guided support, free.

Progress is looked at across four dimensions:

- 1. Speaking comfort: How speaking feels to you.
- 2. Participation: Your willingness to engage rather than avoid.
- 3. Challenge: Your willingness to attempt progressively harder speaking situations.
- 4. Resilience: Your ability to recognise and manage difficult speaking experiences.

The Visible Progress Log and the Baseline-vs-Now Report help you and your facilitators see this clearly.

SECTION 11: WHO THIS IS FOR

This is for you if...

- You are a working professional, team member, job seeker, or adult who often knows what you want to say, but finds it hard to say it when others are listening.
- You tend to avoid workplace meetings, group discussions, spontaneous questions, networking events, or introductions—or you do them while wishing you could be anywhere else.
- You feel uncomfortable when attention turns to you.
- You want a supportive place to practise, not a critical one.
- You are willing to show up regularly and take small steps, even when they feel awkward.
- You do not need to be good at speaking. You do not need to feel confident first. Confidence is what you are here to build.

SECTION 12: WHO THIS IS NOT FOR

An honest note, so you can decide with confidence

SpeakUp Lab is not:

- A presentation-skills course: We do not focus on slides, structure or delivery techniques.
- A speechwriting course: You will not be taught how to write speeches.

- A therapy or clinical treatment programme: Our facilitators are not psychologists or therapists. If your anxiety feels severe or is affecting your daily life, please speak to a qualified professional.
- A passive course: You will not be watching videos and ticking boxes. The point is to speak.
- A promise that nervousness disappears: You may still feel nervous. The goal is to become more comfortable, and to stop letting nerves make the decision for you.

SECTION 13: OBJECTIONS, ANSWERED

"But what if...?"

1. "I am too shy to join." Then this is built for you. Shy people are exactly who the programme is designed around. You can start with the No-Pressure First Seat, where you simply observe.

2. "What if I am afraid to speak even in a small group?" You will begin in a small pod of about 10, placed through Level-Matched Pod Placement. The Week-1 First-Win Fast-Track is a 60-second talk in a small group, and the Easy-Start Five gives you gentle first steps.

3. "What if I do not want to turn on my camera?" The Low-Data Audio-Only Lane gives you an alternative to video.

4. "What if I miss a session?" Life happens. The 24-Hour Catch-Up Pack helps you catch up, and the Every-Session Task Card keeps your practice clear and simple.

5. "I have a busy schedule." Everything is online, so there is no travel. The Busy Professional Practice Pack includes a Lite Plan and a 5-Minute Drill Pack for days when you only have a few minutes.

6. "What if I do not improve in four weeks?" The Speaking Confidence Progress Guarantee means eligible members who need more time can receive up to two additional weeks of guided support at no extra cost.

7. "I do not know anyone in the community." Neither does anyone else at the start. That is why the pre-programme warm-up starts on 22 November.

8. "Is this just another public-speaking course?" No. We do not teach presentation techniques. We give you structured, supported opportunities to actually speak.

9. "Why should I pay when I can watch free videos online?" Free videos cannot sit in a room with you while you try it. SpeakUp Lab gives you 16 scheduled live hours of practice, a pod of about 10, facilitators, a progress log, five bonus packages and three months of alumni access.

10. "What if I am already a little comfortable speaking, but want more practice?" The Starting-Rung Session places you at a higher starting point on the 10-Tier Level Map, and the Real-World Speaking Pack gives you further challenges.

SECTION 14: PRICE AND VALUE

₦20,000. One payment. Everything below included.

The founding cohort price is ₦20,000, one time.

For that, you receive:

- A pre-programme community warm-up from 22 November 2026 to 30 January 2027
- A four-week programme starting 31 January 2027, with 16 scheduled hours of live speaking practice
- Practice in a pod of about 10, supported by facilitators
- All 18 programme components
- Five bonus packages
- Three months of alumni access
- The Speaking Confidence Progress Guarantee

The real question is not whether ₦20,000 is a lot. It is what another year of staying quiet costs you: the meeting contribution you did not make, the group project you stayed quiet in, or the interview answer that did not come out the way you meant.

> [BUTTON: Save My Place for ₦20,000]
> Lock in the founding cohort rate today.

SECTION 15: URGENCY AND SCARCITY

50 places. One deadline.

Two real limits apply:

- The founding cohort is capped at 50 members.
- Enrolment closes on 21 November 2026.

The cap is not a marketing trick. SpeakUp Lab is built around five practice pods of 10 people, each with its own facilitator. Adding more people would mean weakening what makes the programme work.

> [BUTTON: Join the Founding Cohort]
>
> Strictly limited to 50 places.

SECTION 16: FINAL CALL TO ACTION

Having something to say and feeling ready to say it are two different things

You have always had something to say. Your ideas were never the problem.

Silence will always feel safer, but it will not change anything on its own.

What changes it is practice: small, repeated, supported and at your pace.

Imagine, a few months from now, sitting in a meeting when someone asks for input. You are thinking: I could say something. It might still be a bit nerve-wracking, but it feels like something you can do.

That is what Polomo's SpeakUp Lab is for.
